

WELCOME!

Biomedical engineering is a very broad, interdisciplinary field that combines the application of engineering, physical sciences and computer science with medicine and life sciences. We are the first Biomedical Engineering English master programme in Hungary.

The Biomedical Engineering programme and research is undergoing a period of rapid growth and advancement in our university. In the last five years we have founded the CBEI (Centre for Biomedical Engineering and Innovation) with approximately 200 researchers.

Looking forward to the next years, our priorities are to bring our interdisciplinary research and academic activities together from engineers, scientists, and medical professionals to influence the next generation of biomedical discovery.

Our aim is to enhance and support inter- and multidisciplinary research and innovation activity in the Southern-Transdanubia Region, focusing on the field of biomedical engineering. Strengthening the existing and forming new industrial partnerships with companies from the field also belong to the goals, on a local, national, and international level. High-quality, applied science and education development provides the foundation for these measures.

Based on the profile and strengths of our University, the following focus points were defined within the project:

- Medical Simulation Education and Surgical Simulation Technologies
- Neurorehabilitation, Human-Machine Interface
- Bioprinting, Biotechnology and Tissue Engineering
- Biomedical Materials Science
- Software Engineering and AI in Biomedical Applications
- Biocybernetics and medical robotics

It is an exciting time to start the programme with highly qualified students from all over the world.

The mission of the programme is to train graduates of superior technical, professional, and scientific background in biomedical engineering who can perform effectively and embrace education as a lifelong endeavour. Our programme is intended to graduate students who are prepared to pursue meaningful careers and make significant contributions to the biomedical field.

UP Central Library (Knowledge Centre - Tudásközpont)

7622 Pécs, Universitas street 2/a

Students and staff of the University can use most library services free of charge after subscribing to any of the faculty libraries or the Central Library. As ours is a public library, our subscribers include people from the city and the region, students from various Hungarian universities and many other people.

The Knowledge Centre is open from Monday through Sunday; other libraries are usually open on weekdays. It is a very popular place for students to study together with foreign students.

SPORTS FACILITIES

Sporting life at the University is coordinated by the TTK Sport Centre University of Pécs, which offers a wide range of sporting opportunities to the students and staff. The Centre organises various programmes that are attractive and accessible to everybody, irrespective of age, faculty or past training, which is a wonderful opportunity for recreation and regeneration. You can apply for the courses at the beginning of each semester at the NEPTUN (except: Dancing University). Since these courses are compulsory for Hungarian students, tutors take attendance seriously, so you are also kindly advised to attend courses regularly. You should bring clothes and shoes that are characteristic for the sport you have chosen. All the necessary equipment (racquets, tennis balls, etc.) will be available on the spot.

Dancing University

The Dancing University of the University of Pécs is a unique initiative in Hungarian higher education.

The Dancing University was founded at the University of Pécs in 2000. Its main aim was to create an extraordinary leisure-time activity of high quality, which is absolutely unique in Hungarian higher education. It is exercise and entertainment at the same time, the courses can be taken as sports classes or for credit and it also serves as a contact point for students and employees of different faculties.

Student Council of the University of Pécs (PTE EHÖK)

The Student Council of the University of Pécs (PTE EHÖK) is an organization, which deals with students' advocacy and protection. We are managing our activities cooperating with each faculty's authorities and the leadership of the University of Pécs. Our topmost task is to protect students' rights and to represent their interests in cases regarding studies, refunds and benefits, dormitories and other cases connecting to the university. We are also engaged in program organization, so students can relax during their studies. Our latest institution is the PTE Student Service Enterprise, its main goal to provide jobs during university. PTE EHÖK's representatives and officers are elected by the students, which means that every student is a voter or eligible.
